The Society for Clinical Neuropsychology:

- Advances the study of brain-behavior relationships and the clinical application of that knowledge to human problems
- Promotes the use of scientific research to develop our knowledge base and clinical techniques
- Promotes and develops quality standards of professional training and evidence-based practice
- Advocates for the interests of neuropsychologists both as a division and in concert with the American Psychological Association (APA)

Membership in the Society for Clinical Neuropsychology offers:

- Opportunity to keep abreast of the latest clinical practice and training issues, professional standards in neuropsychology and trends in scientific research
- Professional networking; mentoring; opportunities for research presentations and committee involvements for graduate students, fellows, and early career psychologists; various division awards recognizing early career achievements and scholarly research, and scholarships for graduate students in neuropsychology
- Five listservs that are open to all interested members
- A student organization - the Association of Neuropsychology Students in Training (ANST) - with an interactive website that provides networking for students and numerous student resources, with opportunities to learn about science, practice, and professional issues
- Newsletter that is published electronically twice yearly, in the Winter/Spring and Summer/Fall
- Rich program of scientific, educational, and social activities at the annual APA meeting
